INTRODUCTION

A Message from JOEL WOOTON:
Men's Basketball Coaches Association President

We are well underway to another year of the NJCAA basketball season and I am excited to be the new representative of the NJCAA Men's Basketball Coaches Association. I want to thank my predecessor and former association president, Francis Flax, on all he did for the organization. I am honored and privileged to represent our community of junior college basketball coaches. I believe and hope that our organization gives every coach a voice in what happens at our level, and allows them an opportunity to give back to the game we love. I am excited to take an active part in changing perceptions about community college basketball; to provide benefits for all basketball programs. Being a long-standing member of the Coaches Association has given me national perspective on community college programs. I have had experience at both four-year and two-year schools (currently the head coach at Southeast Community College) all over the country, learning and working with some of the greatest coaches and people in coaching.

I believe the NJCAA gives our players opportunities that no other level can, offering the student-athlete a personal approach to learning the game and not only becoming better players, but better students and people as well. Moving forward, I hope move the association to even more participation among the grass-root level. The hope is to have more coaches participating and working at all levels within the community, giving back to our sport. I look forward to serving the organization and wish best of luck to all of our members this season!

JOEL WOOTON
